As the temperatures drop in South Florida, the Village at Gulfstream Park will be awash in the lights and sounds of the winter season with the annual 'Symphony in Lights' festival.

On Saturday, November 9th, thousands will come together in the Village Center to gather under the giant Christmas tree, welcoming Santa Clause's arrival to the Sunshine State set to the tune of holiday hits from carolers and local musical acts. The property will be illuminated in over 250,000 LED lights covering trees and nearby buildings, all set to the classical sounds of the Trans-Siberian Orchestra and other popular artists.

Additionally, eventgoers will have the opportunity to enjoy Christmas carol renditions from nearby groups including the 50-member Gay Men's Chorus of South Florida, the 60-member Hallandale Magnet High School Marching Band and the seven-piece band, Pulse.

The event is sponsored by the City of Hallandale Beach, Florida Power & Light, YMCA of South Florida and WSVN Channel 7.
